This is too often neglected in confined stables, and the consequences are most distressing to a human observer. If the sense of smell is completely obliterated, the bottle should be kept under the nose until the pungency of the volatile alkali is felt. The bottle is then removed to be re-applied after a minute; the second application, however, should not be long, that the patient may bear it. This easy operation being repeated seven or eight times in the course of five minutes, always very rapidly, except the first time, when the nostrils become free, the sense of smell is restored, the secretion of the irritating mucus is stopped. This remedy is said to be peculiarly advantageous to singers.

VIEWS OF AN OLD FARMER. - A successful old farmer once said, that "one acre of land well prepared and cultivated will produce more than two which receive only the same amount of labor used on one. One cow, horse, mule, sheep or hog, well fed and cared for, is more profitable than two fed on the amount that will keep one well. One acre of grass is worth more than two of cotton where no grass is raised. The farmer who never reads the papers, and sneers at book-farming and improvements, generally has a leaky roof, broken down fences, and complains of bad seasons and poor lands. The farmer who is above his business, and entrusts to others to manage, in due season has no business to attend to.'

WHAT TO FEED HORSES .- Every animal requires a certain volume of food to maintain the natural distention of the stomach; that is to say, concentrated food alone could not sustain life. In Prussin rye straw is given to horses alone with oats. They do not cat the straw willingly, so that when the horses are pronounced unfit for service, and are brought by farmers, they are even attached by colic in receiving new rations, because the stomach and intestines have contracted by the barrack rations and time is necessary to enable them to return to their normal volumes. Hay is of different qualities and the feed of oats ought to be proportionate to the quality of hay. The latter, if from marshy land, is not equal in point of nutrition to good oaten straw. Hay from irrigated districts looks well, but it is very nutritive; the best comes from a calcareous soil of mixed grasses, mixed with aromatic plants. Rye straw is Healing Ointment. only good for litter; wheaten straw is relished by horses in the night and eaten at all times. Carrots are more refreshing than nourishing for horses; turnips are next to worthless; but Jerusalem artichokes are good. In Bayaria postare next to worthless; but Jerusaiem artichokes are good. In Bavaria post-horses are fed on potatoes in place of oats. If the former be mixed with bran it is better.
